At the moment where his father worked as a gardener, young Daunt met Fushiki, who was destined to become a Baron, an official aristocrat that serves only the royalty and nobles. In order to save Fushiki, Daunt went to England to further his studies, and eventually won the highest honors for a gardener.
Coming back to his motherland, however, after fifteen long years he found his passage to Fushiki dead.

Excerpt From the Original Author

In Kashira, the author of the original story and novel, Helle and Ise to meet you. This new book contains two stories - the first, being the cover story that takes place in a fictional country called Alissa, and Totoku Gaki which takes place in Great Britain and is included as an epilogue.

Because Alissa is a story that I've written over a long period of time, I felt a little uncomfortable with it in some places as I changed the style just a little. Particularly with How We Save the Empire, I cut back on the draft drastically, as there's quite a big difference. I apologise.

As I checked the drafts, it felt both nostalgic and a little embarrassing, but above all, I am very grateful that I was able to make a collection of these stories in one book. Thank you very much.

Tetsuro-chan, thank you for your hard work. There's still one hurdle left to jump, but let us work hard together. I'd be very pleased to be able to work with you again.

I'd also like to thank K2-san, who helped me with the names for both How We Save the Empire and How We Save the Empire. It was such a big help.

I know I may have caused trouble for the excessive manuscript, but I am really grateful for your assistance. Thank you.

And last but not least, thank you to all of the readers who have purchased this book. If you were able to find this book interesting, it would mean more than the world to me.

Though the series of the Alissa Kingdom has reached an end, I do believe that you will cross across it again after next year, in a different shape. It will take place in the late 16th Century, where the protagonist will be a flower inside a white castle. I hope that you will read that as well.

I pray that we may meet again.
